Creating Your Reality

By Carolina De Roose

You are the creator try not to get diverted with what is or what was. Create a new reality slowly, exactly as you would like it to be. Don't get distracted - just create in your vision your creation, and slowly build it up in full. Trust. Avoid anything anywhere else. Concentrate on exactly what you want.

Slowly include the people around you, and hold onto this path by paying attention to what isn't yet in place. Adjust your attention slowly to change everything into Beauty.

12th Edition

Support the creation you are creating through this higher frequency and higher field strength, and all that was will slowly disappear into a new state of higher field strength. Do not get distracted on your path by anything. Go totally blank toward any print or news from anywhere.

You are the creator of your reality/so your mind needs to go silent to work through the fields you are generating from the field strength within you as creator. Keep your surroundings very clean and high in energy frequency. You can use GANS, Magravs, and other plasma tools, to keep your surroundings clean and keep all disturbing news out of your way

You will create a new reality - YOUR NEW REALITY and in higher field strength. Through this process you keep adding new field strengths, so you remove any negative or any lower frequency, because simply they can't reach your field strength of NEW positioning, through your creation.

You need to change your reality and only yours and make sure that nothing bothers you. Avoid any negativity or radio or tv. Simplify your life. It is easier to break the reality of where you are now, and slowly in your mind build up your new reality with and through a higher frequency field. You will be amazed at your new creation. This is exactly what we need to teach all that desire to evolve. This is the path to walk, and once we achieve our new reality we can go higher and higher, and when the time comes we can elevate all the souls that are around us and ready to evolve, with no crime on their souls. It only takes trust that you are the creator Create your vision in a cloud first, then it materializes into the matter state.

Through love you are beautiful creators

Best Regards Carolina Keshe

Use of Gans on Pumpkin Seeds

By Marcus Volk

Pumpkins were all supposed to be like the pumpkin first in line in the first picture, smooth surface and orange in color according to the seed package. Variety is Atlantic Giant, "Cucurbita Maxima. Participating in the private agricultural teachings, I learned to apply Plasma Water to the seed as a seed treatment. All the seeds were treated with Plasma Water "soaked overnight" from Ganses of CO<sub>2</sub>, Zinc and what should have been CH<sub>3</sub> but maybe is Deuterium Gans . We had used magnesium salt "Epsom Salt" for harvesting of Ganses. Magnesium was used because it gives a very beneficial position for the plant for the production of Chlorophyll. Plasma Water was only used and is water that is filtered through the Gans. Another process that we used was to mix the plasma water in a blender in order to homogenize and increase the potency of the plasma water. This way only a small amount of Gans is needed to make up a larger batch of Plasma water by adding more "regular" water to the mix.

We mixed the Plasma water in this order, from weakest to strongest.  $\text{CH}_3 \rightarrow \text{CO}_2 \rightarrow$  ZINC. In order of atomic mass. Otherwise the strongest would overwhelm the weakest in the mixture and it would have no effect. If applied the other way around, all you would get is Zinc. Also, we added a seed of pumpkin to the mix (the seed is already in a Gans state) to give the seed the plasma of the seed itself.

The purpose for all of this was to abundantly grow pumpkins to a large size, without any other input such as fertilizer or water and also benefit the man's emotion through the use of Plasma water of Zinc and  $\text{CO}_2$ . We had a very rainy summer, the pumpkins did receive plenty of water this way. They were also planted on an old pile of wood ash.

In the understanding I have thus far here is why I used each Gans.

-The  $\text{CO}_2$  serves the purpose to make an ideal growing environment for the plant, like a mini personalized greenhouse for the plant, which makes the plant more resistant to temperature variations, at the same time the plant also attracts more of the Amino-Acids out of the atmosphere, and holds them for the time of use.

Thus,  $\text{CO}_2$  is not a fertilizer but creates a beneficial environment for the plant to grow. It is also important to mention that the  $\text{CO}_2$  may also reduce the gravitational fields of the planet on the plant allowing it to grow with less resistance. Suffice it to say that the use of Plasma in any shape is very dynamic.

-Zinc Gans, for the purpose of satisfying the soul level of the plant. The purpose was to Satisfy the emotional level of humans after consumption of the plant by introducing more fields of Zinc.

Something that I have to try in the future is to produce an organic level of the Gans of Sulphur which would satisfy the emotional level of the plant, happy plant makes for abundant growth of plant. Now this is supposed to be done by the use of dynamic reactors which would produce all fields between two of them and introducing a third reactor which would put out a field of organic Sulphur (possibly made from a plant with a lot of Sulphur content). The next step would be to satisfy the soul level of the plant with a Gans produces in this way also.

-CH<sub>3</sub> (Deuterium Gans) was used in order to provide the energy for the growth of the plant. As conventional nitrogen fertilizer provides the condition for the release of the hydrogen, CH<sub>3</sub> Gans provides the hydrogen directly. In attempting to harvest CH<sub>3</sub> Gans, I had use a power source between the electrodes. Which gave me what could possibly be Deuterium Gans.

I don't know if all of this was the right or wrong way to apply the knowledge. It certainly is a learning process.

The pumpkins are different in texture and color. Could it be that the CO<sub>2</sub> genetically turned back the "clock" on these seeds to an earlier variety? Maybe the Atlantic Giant is a hybrid of some sort. Why is the texture this way? Why is the color this way? If I plant the seeds from these pumpkins again "as is" will it be the same again?

In any case we ended up with some neat textured and colored pumpkins for Halloween. There's one that resemble a brain also.

Updates from Arizona

By Jon Bliven

Around the foundation there continues to be a lot of work and efforts in the background to move many pieces forward. Much like a giant jigsaw puzzle effort are being put in place that will open the doors to the new technologies and to the universal communities. For many people the changes will show up at their door steps and they will be wondering how this all was able to unfold in the background. But is it really all in the background or has only the initial wave of scientists and light workers been drawn to foundation like magnetical rays pulling in those who have desired to change the old paradigm?

Divine timing of all events will assure a positive change for the future. We are all a piece of the equation as the thoughts and actions of everyone add or subtract from the collective. The tipping point has past and like a ball rolling down a hill will continue to gain momentum. What has been shared with the teachings is that our soul and our emotions are the most powerful tools we have available to us. We need to exercise the soul and understand the principals to soul's evolution. For some this will come more easily while others will struggle to hang on to beliefs that they grew-up believing were true. For those interested to understand more of the truth of the soul, I recommend they listen with an open mind and open heart to the following two Knowledge Seekers Workshops

<https://youtu.be/xw4y-cfmDhM>

and <https://youtu.be/dLSuKtjKMBA>

The teachings during the week helped us to understand that there is another way to support disaster relief, peace, and change in this world. The old paradigm was for every disaster that the media decided to promote stories of despair and tragedy would be broadcast over the airwaves with call to action from people who were touched by these stories and appointed relief agencies taking control of all monetary funding and control of access into areas of need. The amount of information about the poor practices of many of these agencies and in many cases, abuse of the donations have too many times left too many affected with little or no support beyond some water and bags of rice.

It is not our role to complain about what came before, but to understand that each person has the innate ability to send energies through their soul to allow other souls in affected areas to be able to change their “hopeless” situation to one where they become the change in their areas. We give energy from our soul not to change another or the situation but to allow those on the ground to take what they need and in turn elevate the collective communities. This will take practice and confidence but it will have the potential to change communities in a new way. To support this requires no money or supplies but a soul that has enough energy to give that another might receive. This is how the call to service can be answered by all that are themselves confident enough in their abilities to send love, send peace, send energetic nourishment to sustain those in need.

At the factory there is continued research and development activities as we work to test different ideas to further our understandings. We work to understand how the soul can support our desires in creating fields that are strong enough to influence change. This is a new area for us all to understand as we work collectively to bring about change. It is my feeling that these understandings will move us closer to our own abilities to create from the fields all around us. As the initial success stories become known more and more will reach higher levels.

1 Year old

By Jon Bliven

This edition marks our first-year anniversary of the Plasma times. For those receiving it we hope that it has brought some useful information. The articles come from many different people around the foundation to share what is current and relevant around the foundation. It is not always easy meeting the publishing deadlines and it takes a lot of support to make it work. By first name only I would like to personally thank the following people who have been instrumental in making this work as well as many contributors who took the time to support with articles they wrote; Suzy, Marianne, David, Mark, Miguel, Vince and a playful chap named Mehran. Heartfelt gratitude in making the Plasma Times the number one read Keshe monthly newsletter. OK we are the only one, but it still sounds better to be number one.
